SEATTLE, Wash., Feb. 26—A shutdown of west coast warplane building factories was threatened today as union officials at the Boeing Flying Fortress plant set Sunday midnight as a deadline for action by the War Labor Board on the union's pay increase demands.

Work was halted for several hours yesterday at two Boeing plants in Seattle and nearby Renton while workers attended a mass meeting and resolved to hold "24-hour general meetings" to compel WLB action on their demands for a wage increase from 62½ cents to 95 cents an hour.

Termination of the stoppage a violation of labor's no-strike pledge, WLB officials at Washington declared

LINDEN, N. J., Feb. 26—

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt today was on record with a proposal that selected war workers be sent to fighting fronts to see the work of their skilled hands in action as one means of curtailing absenteeism among the workers.

The stories they would bring back, she said, would make the workers "more conscious they are a part of the entire war effort."

They "will not be coerced" by the deadline action and would drop consideration of the workers' wage demands until an investigation had been made.

Approximately 15,000 workers, members of the aeronautical engineers' union, AFL, left their jobs at the noon lunch period yesterday to attend the meeting at which the Sunday night deadline was set.

Boeing officials estimated that 97 percent of the day shift at the Seattle and Renton plants left their jobs, necessitating the shutdown.

The shift that reports for work between 3 and 4 p. m. returned to the plants as usual.

Spread Feared

The possibility that the "24-hour meetings" would spread to other warplane building plants on the west coast was seen in the announcement that union officials would ask workers at the consolidated factory at San Diego, Cal., producers of the army's "Liberator" bombers, to join in the Boeing action.

If the WLB still fails to act, union officials said, a similar request would be made to the Lockheed and Vega plants in Burbank, Cal., followed by a general appeal

Move Aimed At Protection Of Congress' Intent On All Bills

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26—The 78th congress today appeared definitely embarked on a course designed to prevent issuance of executive decrees under claims of delegated authority which congress never intended to confer.

A new and advanced legislative policy was understood to be receiving serious consideration by ranking members of the powerful house rules committee aimed at protecting the "intent of congress" in the enactment of all important bills in the future.

In measures containing broad grants of authority difficult to restrict, the policy would require the inclusion of an "intent" clause declaring the limits beyond which the congress would not expect the executive branch to go.

Imposition of the policy would hinge on a proposal that the rules committee, which holds "life or death" power over most legislation, would decline to send to the house floor any bill about which there was doubt on this score unless it contained such a clause.

The proposal, it was understood, has been outlined to a majority of the committee by a ranking democratic member, and the present disposition is to adopt it.

This disclosure came less than a day after congress twice had slapped at the purported failure of the White House to respect the legislative intent of congress. In the space of a few hours yesterday, these developments occurred:

1. Claiming that congress had never intended to delegate such power, the senate by a vote of 77 to 2 passed the Bankhead bill nullifying President Roosevelt's executive order under the 1942 anti-inflation act requiring that in the computation of parity prices, government subsidies to farmers be subtracted.

2. Taking an identical position, the house ways and means committee issued a formal report urging passage of pending legislation which would nullify the President's executive order under

DEAD END KIDS JAILED AFTER $10,000 THEFTS

NEW YORK, Feb. 26—A gang of "dead-end kids," including two girls, who had a 17-year old messenger as their "brain" today faced prosecution for a series of thefts from residences which is estimated to have netted them more than $10,000 in loot.

Leader of the group, whose youngest member was only 12, was James Ludlow. Involved with him on charges of receiving stolen property were his 18-year-old sister, Dorothy and Mrs. Judith Allen, 19, who is married to a soldier.

According to police, Ludlow admitted forming the gang and said that its members spent most of their spoils on "having good times."

Boeing Workers Strike, Parade

AN eight-block line of workers from the Boeing aircraft company plants in Seattle and Renton, Wash., is shown parading through Seattle streets after they had walked out on strike, demanding that the War Labor Board act immediately on their requests for wage increases. The strikers, who make the famous Flying Fortresses, said they would ask support of all aircraft workers in the nation if their demands are not met.

Barney Ross, Marine Hero, Returns, Kisses U. S. Soil, Tells of War

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Feb. 26—Corporal Barney Ross, a Guadalcanal hero of the fighting marines, was back in the good old U. S. A. today, and was happy to return to his native land!

The first thing he did when he stepped down the gangplank from the huge hospital ship which brought him home for rest and recuperation from shrapnel wounds was to kneel down and kiss the ground.

"Boy," he exclaimed, "is it good to get back! I vowed if ever I got back to American soil, I would stoop down and kiss the ground."

Barney, who successfully was lightweight, junior welterweight and welterweight boxing champion, was credited with knocking out 22 Japs, and for keeps, in the Guadalcanal fighting.

For his heroism he recently was awarded the Edward J. Neil Memorial Trophy in absentia in New York and he has been recommended for the Navy Cross.

Talks of Battle

He told some of the incidents when he and a few others guarded their wounded comrades and stood off a force of Japs for hours until relief arrived. He also recalled with amusement the time he was matched against a 215-pound native Samoan with 16-ounce gloves.

"The night I spent in that shell hole with five wounded leathernecks and two soldiers was by all odds the toughest round I've ever slugged through," he declared. "I thought the bell would never sound."

"Through oppression of unarmed peoples," he added, "the Nazis are seeking to compensate for victories which from now on will not be.

"Do everything you can to escape from him, and if that is impossible do everything you can to deceive him."

Lost From Unit

"Four of us were carrying a wounded marine out when we were cut off from our outfit by on-rushing Japs. Three of the four stretcher bearers were wounded slightly also, and I was the only one unhurt. We dived for a pair of shell holes about 10 feet apart.

"In the shell hole with me was an Indian named Pvt. Monak who was one swell marine. My best buddy, Pvt. First Class R. C. At-

FATHER SUED FOR $10,000 BY GENE TIERNEY

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Feb. 26—Movie Actress Gene Tierney today was plaintiff in one of two superior court actions brought against her wealthy insurance broker father Howard S. Tierney.

Both $10,000 damages and an accounting of her funds while her father was her guardian are being sought by the star. The second suit, brought by the film luminary's mother, Mrs. Belle Taylor

Tierney, of Westport, Conn. seeks to void Tierney's Nevada divorce in that state in November 1942 "solely for the purpose of divorce."

STRIKERS FIRED

CLEVELAND, Feb. 26—The strike-torn Aluminum Company of America today fired 52 furnace tenders of the third shift, bringing the total discharged under a war labor board "work or be fired" order to 82, and shutting down production in the company's smelter plant.

MARION MILEY'S KILLERS DIE IN ELECTRIC CHAIR

Three Pay Supreme Penalty For Shooting Golf Star And Mother

ONE DIES PROTESTING

"I Am Not Guilty Of Crime" Night Club Operator Says In "Last Mile"

EDDYVILLE, Ky., Feb. 26—The three slayers of Marion Miley, famous woman golf star, and her mother, Mrs. Elsa Miley, were executed early today in the electric chair at the Kentucky State Prison in Eddyville.

A fourth man, condemned for another crime, went to death with them in the mass execution.

Those who died for Miley held up killings were:

Robert H. Anderson, 37, former Louisville night club operator and a one-time inmate of the State Reformatory and also of the Atlanta Federal Penitentiary.

Thomas Penney, 33, also an ex-convict and a former Lexington, Ky., carpenter.

Raymond "Skeeter" Baxter, 28, greenskeeper at the fashionable Lexington Country Club, where the shootings occurred.

The other man to go to the electric chair was Ernest Trent, who was convicted in Breathitt county for the murder of a constable, Hiram Smith.

Court Fight Fails

Anderson battled in the courts to the very last to escape the death penalty and in a final statement this morning just before he was strapped in the chair again proclaimed his innocence.

"I am not guilty of the crime of which I have been accused," he declared dramatically.

He was the first to go. He was smoking as he was led to the chair and tossed away the cigarette as the death cap was being adjusted over his head.

The current was switched on at 1 a. m. and he was given two shocks. He was pronounced dead at 1:10.

Local drives to provide other thousands of seasonal volunteers to harvest vegetable and fruit crops next Fall.

Curses Penney

Jailers reported he savagely cursed Penney as he was being led from the cell block in death row, blaming Penney for repudiating at Anderson's hearing for a new trial an earlier statement by Penney that he had implicated Anderson because he was "sore" at him.

"If I ever get to Heaven, it will be without forgiving you," he told Penney.

Anderson unsuccessfully sought a writ of habeas corpus in federal court in his final desperate effort to escape the electric chair only last Wednesday.

Penney followed Anderson to the chair. The current was turned on at 1:15 a. m. and he was dead at 1:23. He was given four shocks. He gave a final statement to Warden Jesse Buchanan, but its nature was not revealed at once.

"The statement to Warden Buchanan is true and the warden

LOCAL CANNERS AWAIT WORD ON PRODUCT PRICES

Circleville and Pickaway county canners are still without definite information from government agencies regarding prices to be paid for products for canning.

Spokesmen for canners say that as a result of the delay in providing necessary information to the canners acreage contracting is being held up and neither canners nor growers can proceed with their plans until such information is received.

Usually acreage contracting has been completed before this time of the year.

Canneries locally awaiting government action include Winor and Esmeralda companies of Circleville, Critt's interests in Ashville and Illinois, Mount Sterling Canning Co.

Dewey Opens Battle Of Food, Seeks Volunteer Army to Harvest Crops

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 26—The "battle of food" was opened in New York state today as Governor Thomas E. Dewey sought to enlist an army of volunteers to plant and harvest 1943 crops.

Having signed the Young bill extending the present law authorizing 30-day "furloughs" to school children for farm work without loss of credits, the governor appealed to the population in a state-wide broadcast calling on every pupil over 14, war worker, housewife, and storekeeper to participate.

Terming plans of the federal government as "little better than useless," the governor declared:

"I call upon the people of New York state to join in the program of the state of New York to raise food. There is a part which can be played by almost every boy and girl over fourteen, by almost every man and woman whether farmer, war worker, housewife, garment worker, waiter or shopkeeper. If each will do his part there will be enough plain food for all. Moreover, we shall be taking a mighty step forward together toward victory."

In his reference to farm labor relief plans of the national administration, Dewey referred to President Roosevelt's reported endorsement of a proposal that soldiers be released for a day at a time to do agricultural chores.

"As if an occasional day's work, or even a few days' work near an army camp is what we need," the governor criticized. "The blunt truth is that these magic schemes are little better than useless. They mislead our people into believing that there is no problem after all."

Dewey reiterated his campaign promises that he would not be a candidate for president in 1944. At the same time his secretary, Paul Lockwood, disclosed that Dewey had rejected numerous suggestions that he throw his hat into the presidential ring.

Outstanding points of the state farm plan as outlined by Dewey include:

Immediate recruiting and training of new full-time farm workers in state agricultural schools.

Recruiting and training of at least 10,000 others including high school boys, for work on farms next Summer.

Local drives to provide other thousands of seasonal volunteers to harvest vegetable and fruit crops next Fall.

COL. JACKSON TO BE SPEAKER AT GRADUATION

City's Highest Ranking Officer Accepts High School Invitation

EXERCISES ON MAY 28

Many Members Of Senior Class Await Induction Into Service

Colonel Harry D. Jackson, camp surgeon at Camp Breckinridge, Ky., and Circleville's highest ranking army officer, has agreed to address the 1943 graduating class of Circleville high school at commencement exercises Friday, May 28.

Announcement of Colonel Jackson's acceptance was made Friday by Frank Fischer, superintendent of Circleville schools.

Colonel Jackson, a graduate of Circleville high school, wrote to the superintendent after receiving his invitation: "Your letter rather overwhelmed me. I wonder if you have fully weighed the reproach that will fall on your broad shoulders when the knees of your commencement speaker buckle and let him down."

"However," Colonel Jackson wrote, "I do fully appreciate the honor and I gladly accept, contingent, of course, on any changes that the army might see fit to make in my station."

Superintendent Fischer pointed out that Colonel Jackson's acceptance is especially pleasing to school officials. Many members of the graduating class are now in 1-A under Selective Service procedure and are awaiting only graduation before entering service. The military aspect of the exercises will be in order. Also, school officials have been striving for several years to obtain an outstanding alumnus of Circleville high school for their commencement speaker.

MALONEY BOUND TO GRAND JURY AS "HABITUAL"

William Maloney, West Main street, was bound to the Pickaway county grand jury on two counts Thursday evening by Mayor Ben H. Gordon following his arrest Wednesday night.

Maloney, charged with being an habitual offender, is held in county jail under $200 bond on that charge, and an additional charge of abusing Officer Turney Ross was also filed. Bond of $200 was set on the second case.

Police court shows that Maloney has been arrested eight times since 1938 for being drunk and disorderly. Fines assessed against him were as low as $15 and as high as $100.

He was arrested Wednesday night after a call was received from an uptown store where he was creating a disturbance.

TIRE RECAPPING MADE EASIER FOR MOTORISTS

Revision of passenger car tire recapping regulations was announced Friday by the Pickaway county War Price and Rationing board after it received instructions from state OPA officials.

The order reads: "Effective now rationing of Grade F camelback will be discontinued. This will permit any person, including operators of light trucks, to have his own tires recapped with passenger-type camelback without local board authorization. It will not permit the exchange of a recappable tire carcass for a type camelback, except on certificate."

"A dealer who is now a recapper will no longer be required to sell his recappable tire carcasses to a recapper. He may now have recappable tire carcasses recapped with passenger-type camelback and returned to him without certificate.

"Inventory on passenger-type camelback stock will be retained."

The board pointed out that this does not affect truck-type camelback and it will still be necessary to secure recapping service for truck tires and other tires permitted to recap with truck-type camelback with a certificate issued by the War Price and Rationing board.

COL. JACKSON TO BE SPEAKER AT GRADUATION

City's Highest Ranking Officer Accepts High School Invitation

EXERCISES ON MAY 28

Many Members Of Senior Class Await Induction Into Service

Colonel Harry D. Jackson, camp surgeon at Camp Breckinridge, Ky., and Circleville's highest ranking army officer, has agreed to address the 1943 graduating class of Circleville high school at commencement exercises Friday, May 28.

Announcement of Colonel Jackson's acceptance was made Friday by Frank Fischer, superintendent of Circleville schools.

Colonel Jackson, a graduate of Circleville high school, wrote to the superintendent after receiving his invitation: "Your letter rather overwhelmed me. I wonder if you have fully weighed the reproach that will fall on your broad shoulders when the knees of your commencement speaker buckle and let him down."

"However," Colonel Jackson wrote, "I do fully appreciate the honor and I gladly accept, contingent, of course, on any changes that the army might see fit to make in my station."

Superintendent Fischer pointed out that Colonel Jackson's acceptance is especially pleasing to school officials. Many members of the graduating class are now in 1-A under Selective Service procedure and are awaiting only graduation before entering service.

The military aspect of the exercises will be in order. Also, school officials have been striving for several years to obtain an outstanding alumnus of Circleville high school for their commencement speaker.

TIRE RECAPPING MADE EASIER FOR MOTORISTS

Revision of passenger car tire recapping regulations was announced Friday by the Pickaway county War Price and Rationing board after it received instructions from state OPA officials.

The order reads:

"Effective now, rationing of Grade F camelback will be discontinued. This will permit any person, including operators of light trucks, to have his own tires recapped with passenger-type camelback without local board authorization. It will not permit the exchange of a recappable tire carcass for a type camelback, except on certificate."

A dealer who is now a recapper will no longer be required to sell his recappable tire carcasses to a recapper. He may now have recappable tire carcasses recapped with passenger-type camelback and returned to him without certificate.

"Inventory on passenger-type camelback stock will be retained."

The board pointed out that this does not affect truck-type camelback and it will still be necessary to secure recapping service for truck tires and other tires permitted to recap with truck-type camelback with a certificate issued by the War Price and Rationing board.

Maloney, charged with being an habitual offender, is held in county jail under $200 bond on that charge, and an additional charge of abusing Officer Turney Ross was also filed. Bond of $200 was set on the second case.

WELDON COX IN PRISON AGAIN FOR LONG STAY

Weldon Cox, who served a sentence in the Ohio reformatory at Mansfield after being convicted in 1939 for forgery, is back in prison for assault and robbery and will likely remain there for some time to come.

Cox, with Cecil Frazier, another convict, escaped London prison farm several weeks ago and during their flight robbed Mr. and Mrs. Maywood Horney of near Cedarville. The men were recaptured shortly after the robbery and were indicted by the Greene county grand jury.

Returned to Ohio penitentiary to complete the terms from which they fled, Cox and Frazier learned Friday that Judge Frank L. Johnson of Greene county had sentenced each to serve an additional 10 to 25 years for the Cedarville robbery.

The new terms are to start at the conclusion of their present terms. Both men pleaded guilty of the robbery charges.

Cox, a resident of southern Ohio, was arrested by the local sheriff's office December 5, 1938, and was sentenced to serve one to 20 years in the Ohio reformatory, Mansfield, by Judge Meeker Terwilliger. Local authorities have no record of Frazier, his partner in crime.

HUGE FRENCH PROFITS

The French bankers were permitted to keep the purchase prices of the property, so they amassed huge profits, and it was these profits which were transferred to the Germans.

The banks doing business with the Germans were: the Banque de Paris et de la Banque de la Banque de l'Indochine and the Banque Wurms.

Despite their close cooperation with Germany, apparently these bankers knew in advance the U. S. troops were going to land in North Africa. How they knew this military secret in ample time to send their money to Algiers—though the U. S. Cabinet did not know it until a few days before—has not been definitely established on this side of the Atlantic.

However, certain circumstantial facts are significant. The charming and naive Robert Murphy, had as his close friend Jacques Lemaigne-Dubreuil, head of the French Association of Taxpayers, a big business lobby—financed by many of these bankers. Lemaigne-Dubreuil worked hand in glove with the Comite des Forges, or Steel trust, which had property in Austria and Axis countries. He had led the fascist disturbances in Paris in 1934, shared the same political philosophy as these German-collaborating bankers, and was close to them.

Strangely enough it was Lemaigne-Dubreuil whom Murphy chose to handle his contacts for the invasion of North Africa. It was he who picked General Giraud, arranged to get him to North Africa in disguise, and who was Murphy's key man in this vital operation.

How much Lemaigne-Dubreuil told his banker friends in Paris about our military plans is his secret, but it is an incontrovertible fact that they moved their 25 billion franc profits, wrung from unfortunate Jews and labor unions, to North Africa shortly before the U. S. landing.

However, the francs were taken out of the "Occupation Franks" which the Bank of France paid to Germany every day, for the cost of occupation; so actually these deals did not cost the Nazis anything.

DELAY BY WPB ON WAGE HOIST ANGERS UNION

Workers' Leaders Declare Sunday Deadline For Federal Action

to all airplane workers in the nation.

In Washington, Wayne B. Morse, representative of the public on the WLB, pointed out that no decision could possibly be reached by Sunday. He said the board had hoped to reach a decision by Tuesday or Wednesday.

Almost "Treason"
Brig. Gen. Charles E. Branshaw, district supervisor of the army air force, denounced the threatened tieup as "little less than treason." In a telegram to Harold J. Gibson, president of the Boeing union, Gen. Branshaw urged the workers to return to their jobs. In commenting on the union's action, the general said:

"Americans are dying on battlefields for lack of just such aircraft as Boeing is turning out. How any Americans could stop work like that on the very fighting planes for lack of which their own relatives are dying is just more than I can understand."

Gibson, when informed of the WLB's stand, declared the union's attitude was unchanged. He said the members had directed union officials to call the meeting if their demands were not met and charged the WLB "knew the workers were becoming impatient."

Relatives In Service

Union leaders said they took a poll of their membership which showed that 80 percent of the workers have relatives in the armed forces.

Union officials said that since the request for a wage increase was referred to the WLB more than two months ago, the workers have grown impatient for a decision.

In an attempt to hasten action by the WLB, the union filed suit in federal court in Seattle to compel the board either to take action or to give up jurisdiction.

At Los Angeles, Dale Reed, president of the Aeronautical Industry District Lodge 727, AFL, said union members in the Lockheed and Vega plants will meet Sunday to consider action protesting the alleged delay by the WLB in determining wage scales for the Pacific coast airplane industry.

Earlier in the week, Reed said he telephoned William Davis, chairman of the WLB in Washington, that the board will have to "accept full responsibility" for the effect of its expected directive upon the workers if a scale of only 75 cents an hour is ordered.

Nine of the British bombers failed to return from the night's operations.

Yanks Bomb Italy

American bombers of the ninth air force, based in the Middle East, attacked the harbor district of Naples and Cotrone, on the sole of the Italian boot. Direct hits were registered on the mole in Naples harbor.

All of the American bombers returned safely to their bases.

The axis was taking a sound pummeling in ground fighting in Russia and Tunisia, and allied bombers blasted Japanese shipping in the New Guinea area.

Red army forces charged ahead on the southern front in sustained assaults from Orel to the Caucasus. West of Kharkov Soviet columns plowed ahead and took several towns at the point of bayonets in the drive towards Kiev.

Continued advances were reported in the Caucasus, and west of Rostov along the north shore of the Sea of Azov. The German high command poured an endless stream of reinforcements into the battleline but was unable to halt the Russian offensive.

Soviet dispatches admitted, however, that the going was hard on the Donets basin sector. The enemy has massed tanks and motorized infantry on this sector in a desperate effort to stem the Red army advance and save the large forces pocketed in the area east of Stalino.

But even here the Red army scored some gains southwest of Voroshilovgrad.

In the shipbuilding industry alone there were 12,700,000 man-hours lost in December, or between 8 and 10 percent of all man-hours worked. Only 170,000 man-hours were lost in the industry from strikes in the entire year of 1942.

The time lost from strikes in producing the materials of war is infinitesimal compared to the severe inroads that are being made by absenteeism or "Monday morning sickness" as the navy calls it.

In the shipbuilding industry alone there were 12,700,000 man-hours lost in December, or between 8 and 10 percent of all man-hours worked. Only 170,000 man-hours were lost in the industry from strikes in the entire year of 1942.

The navy department is giving the Johnson bill full backing.

Members of the naval affairs committee disclosed that when Secretary of Navy Knox recently testified before them behind closed doors, he stated that he was "100 percent in favor" of the measure.

Activity the first three days of the registration was steady, registrants at the various high school buildings of the city and county said, with the number of persons expected to sign up Friday being less than the number which had registered each of the first three days.

According to population estimates in the county War Price and Rationing office, only 1,100 individuals were to be registered in Circleville Friday, the total the first three days being 6,902 persons from 2,252 family units. In Thursday's registration 2,598 individuals were signed up from $41 families.

Work has progressed in an excellent manner here and in the county with school faculties and some individuals doing a yeoman job in handling the sign up.

Total of excess cans, bottled and other rationed products reported to the registrants was about one for each person registered, the number being 7,030. Excess coffee reported to date is 92 pounds, 16 pounds being reported Thursday.

Number of children's coffee stamps taken from the books was 18,541 at the end of Thursday's work.

approaching were Capt. O. K. Leblanc, USMC, my skipper; Lieut. John Murdoch of Boston and enough others to make us realize that the round at last was over."

Telling of the famous and somewhat hilarious ring battle between himself and the native Samoan champ, Barneay said:

"That thing was sort of forced on me. This bruiser weighs 215 pounds and is one tough, hard, mean cookie. He's whipped every mother's son on Apia and the other islands thereabouts.

"The marines betting on me found ready takers among the Polynesians' native friends. I understand there was some $2,000 up.

"But this Joe wants to fight barefisted, which is all right with me. But Lieut. Murdoch wouldn't hold still for it. So we put on 16-ounce gloves and had a three-round tussle.

"It was murderous, no mistake about that. We fought three tortuous rounds, but this boy didn't mess around and I was sort of out of practice. Nevertheless, science did the trick, and he went to sleep on the deck. After it was over I lay down and I didn't get up myself for two hours — I just couldn't. The old legs were too wobbly."

BUSY HOSPITAL ASKS REDUCTION IN PHONE CALLS

Berger hospital attaches are voicing another appeal for cooperation. Understaffed and busy at all hours, the staff urges that persons who do not have a particular reason for calling the hospital refrain from doing so.

"Our telephones ring every hour of the day and night," spokesmen for the municipal institution declared Friday, and many of the persons who call here have no particular reason for so doing.

It would help hospital nurses perform more efficient service in the interest of their patients if fewer calls were received.

SOLDIER ARRESTED AS AWOL FROM ARMY CAMP

Private Warren J. Smith of Hayward avenue was taken to Fort Hayes, Columbus, headquarters of the Fifth Service command, Friday, by Police Chief W. F. McCrady following Smith's arrest at his home. The youth is charged with being absent without leave.

Request for Smith's arrest was received from Fort Hayes officials. Smith has been stationed in Battery D, 381st CA, Fort Sheridan, Ill.

Mr. Field explained the value of civilian defense training to the civilian, declaring that even if an emergency never arises the training will still be of value.

The police unit has completed its training, but plans meetings from time to time for refreshing on various angles of service.

TO FARMING FOLK

FRIENDS: The other evening a meeting of importance to every Pickaway county community was held in Circleville. Many leaders of agriculture in Pickaway county were present, and many problems were discussed at length. The outcome of the meeting is of importance to every one. A committee was set up to plan a concerted effort toward obtaining the utmost cooperation in every rural neighborhood in Pickaway county in the matter of manpower and machinery. The committee will work with neighborhood groups in an effort to learn how much equipment and how much manpower can be mustered to help produce food for freedom. The farmer is doing everything he can to produce everything possible on his farm, but there are limits to production possibilities. If the neighborhood units can be worked out to satisfaction then part of the production problem will be answered. The program is one worth trying, especially since the county has a real job in front of it.

CIRCUITEER.

TO ALL

FOLK: It was real good news the other day to learn that during 1943 we may expect to see a 50 percent reduction in the Pickaway county relief load. January and February relief costs have been 50 percent under the expense of the last year, and from all indications the reduction will be continued. Elimination of sewing project, recreation work and other phases of relief has taken a big slice out of the amount of money spent each month locally. With farmers unable to find enough workmen to do the tasks they have on their properties it is fitting that no ablebodied men remain on relief lists. There isn't any excuse for a man who wants to be employed to be otherwise in times like this. Many factories are begging for men; farmers are faced with a grave task of producing without manpower to help turn out the needs of the nation. Let's hope the relief expense cut is at least 50 percent, and much more if possible.

CIRCUITEER.

TO HOUSEWIVES

WOMEN: Next Monday brings another of the problems which every housewife faces during this war. Point rationing of processed foods begins, and there isn't any question concerning the task facing each housewife. It is a difficult one. Many women who have the problem of budgeting the family's money after each pay day now has the additional job of budgeting the family's rationing points. The only advice I have to offer to women who will begin buying canned and other goods under the point system is to go to the store with plenty of time. A thorough understanding of the point system will be brought about through careful buying, and through practice in buying under the point schedule. A meeting was held in Circleville high auditorium Thursday evening for all grocers and their clerks, and for other interested persons. Many of the angles of point buying were outlined by competent OPA officials, and every person there benefited by listening to the various talks. Grocers who will advise their patrons concerning the point value of each piece of rationed merchandise have a job on their hands. They want to move their stock, and they also want to help their patrons to make proper purchases. The whole program is one of necessity, so we should make the best of it even though it is certain to take a little more time and buying in planning a trip to the store. Housewives can save themselves and their grocers a lot of time if they will map out their shopping schedule before they go to the store.

TRUSTEES: I was pleased to learn the other day that you had made a contribution of $500 to the Greek War Relief fund, and the gift becomes more significant when you stop to think that Pickaway county has few, if any, persons living in its confines who are of Greek blood. I hope that the $500 gift will pay for much food which will help to keep some persons in this overriden land from starvation until the clutch of the axis can be broken. Ex-President Herbert Hoover and Hugh Gibson, ambassador to Belgium, urge that more food be sent to Greece. Some is already getting in, they report, but more is necessary "if that gallant nation is to be saved." They say that we must also decide—and soon—what we are going to do for 50,000,000 starving people, including 12,000,000 children, in Belgium, Holland, Norway and Poland. The consequences if we do not make ourselves our brother's keepers in respect to those nations will be dire. Says Hoover: "If we take the wrong turning, we shall come one day to find a strange Europe in which our defeated enemies alone have health and stamina, in which our friends are weakened in health and character—and perhaps embittered." These are moderate and reasonable words—but they express a situation which is far from being moderate or reasonable. Food is indeed a weapon, and that weapon must be put in the hands of our friends.

TO AUTOISTS

DRIVERS: As automobile tires wear out and become scarce, their value naturally increases. Not only their market value, but their value in the eyes of the law. Many states are enacting laws more drastic than usual. One such measure, getting a five-to-one vote in the Ohio legislature, makes the mere theft of tires, casings, tubes, rims, wheels, or gasoline, regardless of the actual value, a "grand larceny" offense punishable by one to seven years in prison and a maximum fine of $1,000.

This is getting automobile accessories, not to mention the cars themselves, into the class of horses in the old pioneer days, when horse-stealing was often treated as a capital offense. Indeed, it wouldn't be surprising, any time now, to learn of automobile raids and thefts in the old frontier manner, with battle fought over tire ownership. And for the same reason. Suppose you left your car standing on a seldom-used road, 50 miles from a town, and somebody came along and jerked off a tire or wheel?

and half-senior legislators the jitters. They're fearful of a tremendous influx of relatively young kids, yet old enough to occupy law-making jobs, who'll vote 'em out of office.

The theory is that these juvenile chaps will run the post-war country. They did it after the Revolutionary War, the War of 1812 and the Civil Struggle, the Spanish War and World War No. 1.

This thing, still pending, is a problem. Naturally it is, since nobody knows just when or how it'll terminate. The theory is that it's approaching its finish and that the United Nations will win conclusively. Those two conclusions are accepted about unanimously. The "when," though, is open to discussion as yet. And the "how" is discussed also. Russia's what perturbs everybody. The initial assumption was that the Soviets had been assimilated by the democracies. It doesn't look so much like it as of late. How are we going to get along with 'em?

Then again, we Americans are accused of planning a kind of a democratic dictatorship. Ours is more pronounced than Britain's is. What'll the returning vets say?

The New Dealers have tried to educate 'em into the New Deal way of thinking, and wartime is a good time to regiment folk. However, Americans are different from Chinese "and such." Maybe it won't "take" with us. Maybe democracy is too ingrained in our nationality to be affected. Perhaps it'll stick with our boys, as they come home.

It'll be an organization of millions—in comparison with the Sons of the American Revolution, the 1812's, the Spanish-American Veterans, and the celebrated Civil War Veterans—the G.A.R. It hasn't been established yet, but it will be. Congressmen of today are trying to "make medicine" with it. They figure that returned vets will run the country. But it'll all depend on how long the war lasts. If it ends in short order, the current "big bugs" will get the credit. If it ends later the peewees will count, because the magnates'll be dead of old age.

The immediate bunch will be in politics. Later?

But that's for a future generation! That's what today's politicians are stewing about.

Variety of Nodules Under Skin on Arms and Legs

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

deal at a loss because there are so many different kinds of them that it is difficult to give concrete advice.

Some of these nodosities are expressions of general systemic disease; others are purely a local condition.

Of the local ones, perhaps the commonest is a lump that occurs on the wrist, or the back of the hand, just at the hump. The name of this swelling is ganglion, but it does not, as might be supposed from that name, originate from nervous tissue.

It is a growth in the form of a sac filled with liquid which arises from one of the tendons or tendon sheaths of the muscles of the forearm. It is usually painless, except just at the first when it is beginning to form, and unless it is big enough to become awkward, it does not harm.

The older surgeons used to treat it by putting the hand on a solid table and striking the ganglion sharply with the back of a book. This is not only brutal treatment, but actually harmful because some time after that the ganglion has to be dissected out by surgery.

Rheumatic Nodules

As examples of nodules which are evidences of systemic disease, probably the best examples are the so-called rheumatic nodules which occur in a very large proportion of cases of acute inflammatory rheumatism and, in fact, may be the only evidences of the disease. In other words, the nodules may appear without joint or heart changes. They occur over the front of the forearm, along the line of the tendons or just under the skin and are usually red and painful. They may also appear over the shin where, again, they are just under the skin and are red and painful. The treatment of them is the treatment of nervous tissue.

In many people over the age of 60 there can be seen and felt little nodes at the joints at the ends of the fingers. They are called Heberden's nodes, although all that Dr. Heberden said about them 150 years ago was: "What are these little nodes that appear at the ends of the fingers?" Nobody since then has been able to give a very good answer. They are often said to be associated with chronic arthritis, but in many cases they occur without any other joint changes except a slight stiffness of the ends of the fingers. They are painless and need no treatment.

Other Nodules

A condition which may lead to serious disability consists of nodes or lumps that appear under the skin, usually on the legs. The name of this condition is erythema induratum. The nodules often extend clear down to the muscle and cause considerable pain, not only when the subject is walking, but even at rest. The condition is very chronic and the nodes may break through the skin and ulcerate. The underlying condition appears to be one of poor circulation, and treatment by the use of heat, massage, violet light therapy and measures to restore circulation, such as exercises of the feet and toes, are indicated.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

M. S. G.—What can you tell me about abscess of the lung? Is it a serious ailment? How long does it take to cure it? Is there any relationship between that and tuberculosis?

Answer: Abscess of the lung is certainly a serious ailment. It can come from tuberculosis or follow pneumonia or any infection of the bronchial tubes or the lungs. Many cases get well in the course of time by the use of postural drainage, which is to lie three or four times a day so that the head is lower than the hips over the edge of the bed or chair. Cases which do not respond to this treatment may require drainage by surgery. About 75 per cent of cases ultimately have a complete recovery.

A Large Number

• Today's politicians already are guessing on the probable voting tendencies of returning war veterans. The presidency isn't so much a personal issue among 'em. Few of their number have any hopes of getting into the White House. They think that maybe Franklin D. Roosevelt will be chosen for a fourth tenancy, or Henry A. Wallace, or Herbert Hoover, or somebody else, old enough to be eligible for the chief magistracy, but too old to have been conscripted or accepted for military service.

It's generally agreed that F. D. wants to succeed himself, to finish the war, if it's still raging in 1944, or to superintend peace-making, if it's ended. He'll have considerable Democratic opposition for the nomination, however, and certainly plenty of Republican opposition on election day. How all that'll come out not even the slickest politician cares to predict yet.

deal at a loss because there are so many different kinds of them that it is difficult to give concrete advice.

Some of these nodosities are expressions of general systemic disease; others are purely a local condition.

Of the local ones, perhaps the commonest is a lump that occurs on the wrist, or the back of the hand, just at the hump. The name of this swelling is ganglion, but it does not, as might be supposed from that name, originate from nervous tissue.

It is a growth in the form of a sac filled with liquid which arises from one of the tendons or tendon sheaths of the muscles of the forearm. It is usually painless, except just at the first when it is beginning to form, and unless it is big enough to become awkward, it does no harm.

The older surgeons used to treat it by putting the hand on a solid table and striking the ganglion sharply with the back of a book. This is not only brutal treatment, but actually harmful because some time after that the ganglion has to be dissected out by surgery.

Rheumatic Nodules

As examples of nodules which are evidences of systemic disease, probably the best examples are the so-called rheumatic nodules which occur in a very large proportion of cases of acute inflammatory rheumatism and, in fact, may be the only evidences of the disease. In other words, the nodules may appear without joint or heart changes. They occur over the front of the forearm, along the line of the tendons or just under the skin and are usually red and painful. They may also appear over the shin, where, again, they are just under the skin and are red and painful. The treatment of them is the treatment of the underlying condition.

ANSWER: Abscess of the lung is certainly a serious ailment. It can come from tuberculosis or follow pneumonia or any infection of the bronchial tubes or the lungs. Many cases get well in the course of time by the use of postural drainage, which is to lie three or four times a day so that the head is lower than the hips over the edge of the bed or chair. Cases which do not respond to this treatment may require drainage by surgery. About 75 per cent of cases ultimately have a complete recovery.

EDITORIAL NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by sending 15 cents for pamphlet sets for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet, send 15 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. grease out of the broiler, and it smelled horrid, and stuck to her hands and covered the sink.

The next morning she called Het up.

"This is an urgent SOS. For heaven's sake come up here and help me out," she begged.

"Having your hands full? You poor thing, it is a chore until you get the hang. Surely I'll come up.

"I've a violent hankering for the country now, anyway. Where do I go, and when?"

"She arrived that afternoon, and the very sight of her comforted Kay. Kay didn't watch her with half an eye the way she had Anna. This time she paid attention, and took notes and stayed awake nights thinking of questions to bombard Het with the next day. And gradually most of the major knots were untangled.

Jake liked having Het around, too. They'd argue and heckle each other, and gossip a bit; and then Het would ask Jake some musical question, and first thing they knew he'd be at the piano and stay there, playing for hours.

"How's your campaign going?"

"Let's try a drop of sherry in," Het suggested. And that did the trick. She was going to spend the winter boning up on cook books.

"The potatoes were a bit hard, the string beans gray and tasteless. But the steak was good. It was delicious. Jake ate three helpings.

"You're a wonder, darling. It's the best steak I ever ate," she exclaimed with admiration. "If the budget runs to steaks three times a day we'll get along fine."

"I'm sorry I'm such a punk cook," Jake apologized weakly. "I'll try hard to get better."

"Honey, don't take me so seriously," Jake said with a grin. "Of course you'll learn. If this steak is any sample, you're going to be a grand cook."

Kay tried to cheer up. It would have been easier if she hadn't felt so terribly tired. Each reparate muscle in her whole body seemed to ache. She'd never been tired like that morning.

She dashed upstairs for minor repairs. When she came down and hurried into the kitchen to look at the steak, she found that one side of it was charred black.

She turned it over with an angry flourish. She's better stick around and see that the same thing didn't happen to the other side.

"Want a divident?" Jake yelled.

"No, thanks. I've had all I want."

This was a time of day that she usually loved, sitting quietly with Jake before dinner, chatting about the news of the day. She had a lot to learn about cooking before she would ever be able to do that again. Kay, the kitchen drudge. She'd been a simpleton to ever get through her hair since 7 o'clock that morning.

They didn't have any after-dinner coffee. Kay wanted to feel fresh in the morning before she tackled coffee again.

"Want some help with the dishes?" Jake asked.

"Thank you, no. Dish washing is woman's work." One household drudge was enough.

"Why don't you leave them until morning. You'll have plenty of time then."

"I hate leaving things messy. It won't take long." Kay recollects what a rush she'd been in all morning. If she'd had a pile of dirty dishes to do, she never would have had time into any such fix as this.

She turned off the broiler, put a piece of butter and some salt on the steak, took it out of the oven and poured the pan gravy over it.

She turned with a smile. "I think she ever would get the

Jesus Restores Lazarus to Life

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Feb. 28 is John 11, the Golden Text bearing John 11:25, "I am the resurrection and the life.")

JESUS HAD three friends besides his immediate followers, whom he dearly loved. They were a brother and two sisters, and their names were Lazarus, Mary and Martha. They lived at Bethany, which is on the eastern slope of the Mount of Olives, opposite Jerusalem. Jesus visited them often.

Lazarus was taken ill, and the sisters sent to Jesus, who was about two miles away from Bethany, saying, "Lord, behold, he whom Thou lovest is sick." When Jesus received the message He said, "This sickness is not unto death, but for the glory of God, that the Son of God might be glorified thereby."

He did not go immediately to His friends, but waited for two days in the same place, then said to His disciples, "Let us go into Judea again." They protested because they said, "Master, the Jews of late sought to stone Thee; and goest Thou thither again?" Jesus answered, "Are there not twelve hours in the day?" meaning that He would obey the will of God who ordered His life.

Lazarus was taken ill, and the sisters sent to Jesus, who was about two miles away from Bethany, saying, "Lord, behold, he whom Thou lovest is sick." When Jesus received the message He said, "This sickness is not unto death, but for the glory of God, that the Son of God might be glorified thereby."

Jesus was much moved and "groaned in spirit, and was troubled." "Where have ye laid him?" He asked, and when they said, "Lord, come and see," Jesus wept.

Still with a troubled spirit Jesus went to the tomb of Lazarus, which was in a cave with a stone blocking the entrance. Jesus told them to roll the stone away, and Martha interposed, saying that her brother had been dead four days and the body had probably started to decay. Jesus said to her, "Said I not to thee, that if thou wouldest believe, thou shouldst see the glory of God?"

Stone Is Rolled Away

The stone was taken away and Jesus raised His eyes to heaven and thanked God that He had been heard. "And I knew that Thou hearest me always; but because of the people which stand by I said it, that they may believe that Thou hast sent Me."

Misunderstanding, the disciples said that was good; that the sleep would do Lazarus good, and Jesus told them plainly that Lazarus was dead.

Now, according to the Hebrew custom of the time, when someone in the family died, he or she was buried that same night, and friends ten at least, came to stay with the family to comfort them. Martha, however, the more active of the two bereaved sisters, left the house when she knew Jesus was coming, and met Him.

"Lord, if Thou hadst been here, my brother had not died. But I know that, even now, whatever Thou will ask of God, He will give it Thee." You see, she had not lost hope even then, but trusted that Jesus would save them from this great grief.

Jesus said to her, "Thy brother shall rise again," and Martha answered, "I know that he shall rise again in the resurrection, at the last day."

Jesus said to her, "I am the resurrection, and the life; he that believeth on Me, though he were dead, yet shall he live."

Martha returned to the house and told Mary that she was near and called for her, so Mary went out to Jesus, and some of the mourners went with her. In her grief she threw herself at Jesus' feet and said the same thing Martha had said to Him, "Lord, if Thou hadst been here, my brother had not died."

Jesus Restores Lazarus to Life

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Feb. 28 is John 11, the Golden Text being John 11:25, "I am the resurrection and the life.")

shall rise again," and Martha answered, "I know that he shall rise again in the resurrection, at the last day."

Jesus said to her, "I am the resurrection and the life; he that believeth on Me, though he were dead, yet shall he live."

Martha returned to the house and told Mary that Jesus was near and called for her, so Mary went out to Jesus, and some of the mourners went with her. In her grief she threw herself at Jesus' feet and said the same thing Martha had said to Him, "Lord, if Thou hadst been here, my brother had not died."

Jesus was much moved and "groaned in spirit, and was troubled." "Where have ye laid him?" He asked, and when they said, "Lord, come and see," Jesus wept.

Still with a troubled spirit Jesus went to the tomb of Lazarus, which was in a cave with a stone blocking the entrance. Jesus told them to roll the stone away, and Martha interposed, saying that her brother had been dead four days and the body had probably started to decay. Jesus

SHANS FAVERED
TO GRAB MATCH
WITH ARMY MAN

NEW YORK, Feb. 26—Cleo Shans, little Los Angeles colored whirlwind, rates a surprising 6 to 5 favorite over Pvt. Johnny Greco of the Canadian army for their rounder at the garden tonight.

Shans' experience has given him the edges over the 20-year-old Montreal mauler, but Greco will have plenty of backing by ring time and the boys will probably go into the ring at even money, take your pick.

Greco is a kayo artist. He has stopped more than half of his 32 opponents to date, flattening 10 of his last 12 opponents, two of them in the garden.

GEORGE BRENT, KAY FRANCIS

"The Lady is Willing," with George Brent and Kay Francis, is the way the marquee will read on the Radio Theatre, Monday, March 1. The full-hour dramatic show is carried by the Columbia network at 8 p. m.

Producer Cecil B. DeMille has chosen a popular comedy in which Kay Francis will portray a glamorous stage-star who is suddenly overcome with mother love when she chances upon an abandoned baby. George Brent is the doctor-husband.

Miss Francis, who is a frequent guest star in the Lux Radio Theatre, has recently returned from England and North Africa where she visited and entertained United States servicemen.

BLACKOUT CAUSES RUSH

Five first-chair men in Raymond Paige's orchestra, which provides the music for "Stage Door Canteen," finish a program at 8 p. m., at NBC, dash into waiting taxi cabs and reach Columbia Playhouse II from which the "Canteen" airing originates within three minutes. Because a test blackout was called this week in New York at nine o'clock, it was necessary for a police escort to rush the men through the dark streets of the city—but they arrived at 8:10, 20 full minutes before airtime.

Monroe Township Site Chosen for Oil Pumping Station.

20 ACRE PLOT SELECTED ON PORTER FARM

Eight Men Required To Run Local Booster Station On Big Line

HOUSES TO BE ERECTED

Construction Work Moving Rapidly, County Section Nears Completion

Farm of John M. Porter in Monroe township near Pheron has been designated by Emergency Pipelines, Inc., as location for one of a series of pumping stations to be spotted along the 1,400 mile crude oil line. The important pipeline runs from Longview, Texas, to Norris City, Ill., and thence eastward to Bayonne, N. J. and Philadelphia, Pa.

Pipeline spokesmen said Friday that a 20-acre area on the Porter farm has been chosen for the station and that at least three residence properties will be built there. Between eight and 10 men will be employed full time at the pumping station, working eight hour shifts.

All pumping through the crude oil lines will be by electricity. A special communications system will be constructed connecting all pumping stations along the line.

Pipeline men said that 800 pounds of pressure is required to move the oil. The line will be kept full of crude oil 24 hours a day.

Men in charge of construction of the line paid a tribute to Pickaway county soil Friday when they said that Pickaway county is one of the very few spots in the entire route of the pipeline in which it has not been necessary to paint pipe before putting it into the ground to prevent acids from eating into it. Pipe painting was stopped when the Pickaway county line was reached, tests of the ground showing it to be acid free.

Pipe placed in Pickaway county soil is three-eighths of an inch in thickness, weighs 98 pounds to the foot and each section, weighs two tons.

The 1,400 mile line when in full operation will move 300,000 barrels of oil a day from Texas to the east coast. To fill the pipe from start to finish would require almost 90,000,000 gallons of crude oil. The pipe holds two gallons to the inch, and the line is 1,400 miles long.

Expert pipeline builders are able to bend the pipe into curves. The pipe is welded on the ground, no welding in the ditch being necessary. The welded pipe is gradually lowered into the ditch until it is ready to be covered. One end of the pipe always remains out of the ditch.

Workers drill under roadways, using caterpillars to pick up sections of pipe, shoving them under

OPA SOFTENS RESTRICTIONS ON AUTO BUYING

Office of Price Administration Friday announced liberalization of restrictions on purchase of new automobiles so that the nation's stock of 240,000 vehicles may be sold.

OPA said that gasoline and other driving restrictions are so tight that it is possible to open the sale of automobiles to more persons. New rules are effective March 6.

Only about 1,000 new cars of 1941 production are available and they may be bought by anyone in a gainful occupation or doing war or public welfare work. A statement of need must be filed with the automobile dealer. Ration certificates for 1941 cars are necessary.

For purchase of 1942 convertibles and models with list price over $1,500 ration certificates must be obtained from ration boards. Anyone in gainful occupation or doing war or public welfare work who does not have a serviceable car may apply. In this classification the eligibility list has been broadened and made applicable to cars valued between $1,500 and $2,500 instead of a minimum of $2,500 as before.

For cars of 1942 with list price of $1,500 or less ration certificates may be obtained by anyone eligible for "C" gasoline rations if he does not have a suitable car. This classification formerly was limited to essential war workers and doctors.

4-H GIRLS AND BOYS URGED TO LENGTHEN HOURS

Appeal was sent Friday to Pickaway county 4-H club boys and girls to increase the number of hours they spend each year on their farm and home tasks.

State club leaders, estimating that each 4-H boy and girl devotes 500 hours annually to his tasks, have worked out an hour-point system so that each club member will be given credit for time and energy spent on different club activities.

The honor-point scale is graduated to make allowance for the capabilities of the different age groups. For 12-year-old members is 12 points, and one point is 50 hours work on the farm and in the home. This work is needed to maintain production of farm products.

Members also can earn points through such activities as health maintenance. Improvement of eating habits, adoption of good health practices, keeping food analysis score cards for the family, and studying first aid, home nursing, or nutrition are avenues through which these points can be earned.

Members can earn a maximum of eight points in regular club projects such as raising beef or dairy calves, swine or sheep production, raising poultry, planting vegetables or field crops, doing repair work on the farm or in the home, canning, or making clothing. This project work is in addition to time spent on the regular work on the farm or in the home.

Community services such as scrap collection, purchase of war stamps and bonds, sale of stamps or bonds, donations to local relief agencies, participation in fire or accident prevention campaigns, killing rats and mice, and service to neighborhood leaders in defense work are other activities which enable 4-H club members to earn points.

Boys and girls who reach their point-quota will be recognized as Victory 4-H Members. State leaders expect there will be thousands of Ohio members who will score two or three times the required number of points to earn the Victory designation.
